visual communications solutions

Not just Knowledge. Know How.

Knowledge is book smarts. It's about knowing the answers because you read the manual.

Know how is experience. It's about solving problems because you've done it before. You not only read the book, you wrote it.

York Telecom has both.

We have unparalleled knowledge in professional consulting, integration and operational services for visual communications systems. We know how to use these technologies to optimize your system's reliability, uptime and ease of use.

Complete Visual Communications Solutions

We provide everything needed for your visual communications system, including planning, design, integration, and operational management. Complete system solutions include three dimensions:

Time – We support you throughout the entire project lifecycle, from planning through implementation and operations.

Resources – We build your entire visual communications system, including procurement, delivery, and hardware.

Management – We plan for long-term results, calculating your ROI, managing system operations, and measuring service quality.

Let our Knowledge and Know How help you today.

York Telecom aims to be the premier global provider of professional audio and visual communications solutions and services, through leadership in technology, innovation and strategic partnerships.
